Dictator Khamenei's Unjust Attacks on Opposition Families

Examining the Repression Beyond Iran's

Hamburg, 21.02.2024, 16:23 Time

USPA NEWS - The sudden and baseless attacks on families of opposition members residing outside Iran by the ruthless dictator Khamenei and the terrorist group IRGC are entirely unrelated and unjustified. This occurs at a time when internal conditions in Iran are under the control of the Khamenei dictatorship, and street protests are not taken seriously.

The dictator has decided to mentally suppress his always Protester in anticipation of future protests, (Maybe he can So that he may be able to confront the next wave of protests in Iran, which, of course, seems impossible. The courage of the people of Iran is increasing every day, and the number of opponents to the Islamic dictatorship in Iran is noticeably increasing. Even many clerics within Iran (conditions are so tough, and people detest them, forced to no longer wear their clerical attire) because people in Iran consider Shiite clerical attire as a manifestation of theft and crime. This perception has discredited religion and clericalism in Iran. Many Iranian clerics have left Iran for fear of their lives and their families, or they openly oppose the Khamenei regime and end up in political prisons.

Despite all this, the people of Iran are so averse to Shia'a Islamic clerics that they have no trust whatsoever in any Shia Islamic Ayatollahs who has studied in the seminaries of Qom or Yazd within Iran. This means that even if a cleric is a good person, the people of Iran do not follow them. This shows the high level of awareness among the people of Iran.

Their understanding is so profound that they have reached a level of secularism. It can be stated that the people of Iran have undergone a kind of religious renaissance.

The consecutive and unjustified executions, such as the 120-year prison term for political dissidents, along with actions like internet speed reduction, severe economic conditions, and the devaluation of the Iranian currency, have created extremely unusual circumstances in Iran. In the subsequent stages, the Khamenei regime began severe suppression of religious minorities. Many Bahá'ís, around 622 Christians, and numerous Sunni Muslims, mainly residing in Sistan and Baluchestan province, were thrown into prison, subjected to massacres, and detained.

In the next stage, mass executions began, each with peculiar and unjustifiable reasons. It was never proven why individuals who participated in protests, without any crime other than participating in demonstrations against the Islamic government of Iran, had to face execution. An example of these executions is the infamous "Isfahan House," where three young Iranians were executed without any justifiable evidence.

In the next step, the dictatorial regime of Khamenei, the Islamic terrorist republic of Iran, began a massacre and execution of individuals who shared news related to Iran on their social media pages, aiming to let the world know exactly what was happening in Iran. However, due to severe and intense government suppression, people gradually stopped sharing daily news from Iran with the international community. The only hope left for the people of Iran was Iranians living outside the country.

Furthermore, charges of blasphemy and apostasy from Islam have been incorporated into the laws of the Islamic Republic, claiming the lives of many young individuals. Over the past year, numerous individuals were executed due to their criticism of the Islamic government, disbelief in Islam, and personal beliefs. The most notable among them were individuals named "Yousef Mehrdad" and "Seyed Sadrallah Fazli Zare." News also indicates the imprisonment of another 119 individuals with similar charges, who could face execution at any moment.

In subsequent actions, the Iranian government initiated the removal and severe suppression of popular artists, leading to their imprisonment. The most well-known among them are Taraneh Alidoosti, Mani Haghighi, Mahdi Yarrahi, Toomaj Salehi, and Saman Yasin.

Approximately 203 artists, actors, singers, and athletes have been banned from any dealings and interactions. They are prohibited from using social media and the internet, conducting interviews, and even utilizing their bank accounts.

Moreover, they are not allowed to leave Iran.

In the next stage of suppressions, the Iranian regime started detaining Iranian expatriates who were living abroad and had traveled back to their home country for visits. Many of them are currently unable to return to their country of residence.

And also many local journalists are in political prison in Iran in this days

The next move of the Iranian regime involved complete segregation of schools and universities and a severe gender segregation policy in Iran.

Even the content of textbooks for young girls and boys changed in the new academic year.

The recent disgraceful act by the Islamic Republic of Iran and the notorious terrorist Khamenei, involved initiating baseless attacks and creating fear among Iranian families residing abroad.

In 2022, 2023, and 2024, Iranians abroad, due to misguided policies and the rule of a fanatical leader named Ali Khamenei, faced threats and underwent forced migration, enduring the challenges of adapting to new cultures and legal systems.

Iranians are Thanks full

Unfortunately, the oppressive actions of the Islamic Republic and Khamenei have led to a negative global perception of Iranians. It's crucial to recognize that the Iranian people, with a rich culture, diverse landscapes, and historical significance, deserve a better reputation. Despite the hardships imposed by the regime, Iranians cherish their country's civilization, historical landmarks like Persepolis, and hold an ardent wish for a secure and inclusive homeland. The forced exile of Iranians to countries like the United States, Canada, Germany, France, Switzerland, and others is a testament to the gratitude they feel towards nations providing refuge.

They only wish to be beneficial for all countries worldwide, and the majority of Iranians feel deeply embarrassed and ashamed of the current Iranian government led by so-called clerics and the dictator Khamenei. They strive to liberate Iran, presenting it internationally, and Iranians are well aware that, upon the country's freedom, they would greatly benefit from the support of modern countries like Japan, Germany, and the United States to rebuild Iran after the fall of the Khamenei regime.

People of Iran need Strong Support

The people of Iran are currently ready for significant change, and this change can only be the complete downfall of the dictatorial system of the Islamic Republic and the establishment of justice in Iran. However, as mentioned in all my articles, achieving this change is currently impossible with the existence of a ruthless, human-rights-violating, terrorist government like the Islamic Republic. The people of Iran are well aware that if they return to the streets without international support, the government of Ayatollah Ali Khamenei (the godfather of world dictators and Terrorism : ready to shoot missiles at its own people within Iran.) In such a case, calling for change and witnessing a completely peaceful revolution in Iran is unrealistic.

Certainly, the people of Iran need international assistance, and this assistance can be highly beneficial and extensive. For example, supporting the workers of the Iranian oil company and providing a solution for sustaining their lives during a peaceful strike, imposing more severe sanctions on the Islamic Republic and the IRGC terrorists in all countries, establishing an exiled government as an opposition and alternative to the Islamic Republic, officially recognizing this exiled government, negotiating with the exiled government of Iran, and not inviting any representative of the Iranian regime to any country supported by human rights advocates worldwide. Additionally, showing more support for the people of Iran contributes to global peace.

These are my opinions, and undoubtedly, there are potentially better and more practical solutions to experience a world of peace without war.

One must be aware and consider the destabilizing actions of the Khamenei regime in the past approximately 30 months. They create insecurity everywhere as long as they remain in power. I reiterate: the Islamic Republic regime, led by Ayatollah Khamenei (a brutal and ignorant dictator), is not a cancer, and that label is inaccurate.

The best term to describe the government under Ali Khamenei is: The Islamic Republic of Iran is the most significant virus for destroying humanity."

And to eradicate this virus, a vaccine is needed.

The vaccine for the destruction of Ayatollah Khamenei and the Islamic Republic is primarily the voices of the people inside Iran. It is enough to consider the situations in countries like Ukraine, the Red Sea, the holy land of Israel, Lebanon, Iraq, Syria, Yemen, and Venezuela to believe that the Islamic Republic of Iran is a highly dangerous, destructive, and terrifying virus against all of humanity.

The ideology of Ali Khamenei

A tyrannical, ruthless, and filthy ideology, needs to be swiftly combated globally, much like the handling of the coronavirus, to cleanse Iran, Iranians, and the entire world from the virus of the "Islamic Republic" gods.

I thank you, esteemed reader, for reading this article to the end. I hope that moving forward, you will be more aware of the dangers of the Islamic Republic of Iran, and we can all work together for a secure and peaceful world. Additionally, let's join forces to address environmental issues, climate concerns, and the plight of endangered species, and collectively save our forests. The most beautiful feeling for a human being is to live in a world filled with peace and positive news.

I want to clarify that in no way did I intend to insult any religion in this article. I simply described the current events and conditions in Iran and the type of Islam under the leadership of Khamenei. All religions and beliefs are respected, but a world filled with peace and secularism is more beautiful.

During our lifetime, we must speak out against injustices, as the greatest enemy of humanity and God is Satan. There should always be a distinction between the kingdom of God and earthly kingdoms. Hoping for a day when we all experience joy in every corner of the world, and no child, whether in Africa, Iran, or anywhere else, experiences the fear of war. Also, no parent should endure the bitter experience of being unable to provide food and clothing for their children.

An ideal world, calm and full of happiness, is the shared aspiration of all of us. However, we must first eliminate entities like Ali Khamenei and his regime, who are akin to demons.

I conclude this article with the image you see, dated 2024 AD, which reflects the insanity and filth of Ali Khamenei's thoughts and his regime. In this picture, representing a third-grade Iranian schoolchildren's textbook, the left side has been censored. Khamenei and his regime cannot tolerate even the notion of girls being seen alongside boys in a very crude painting, despite the Islamic hijab. This signifies that, in the minds of Ayatollahs, girls and honorable women have no place whatsoever. The most fitting sentence to conclude this article is,

Dictator Ayatollah Khamenei doesn't even show respect to his own mother and sister.
